

I can not understand why this is even a consideration. People already abuse cell phones by talking too loud in public places and ignore the people they are with. If approved I would consider dicing the plane into two sections - those who want to use their cell phones and scream over each other and the other for those of us who prefer the quiet time....